

Loyola University New Orleans

Faculty Position in International Business

The Joseph A. Butt, S.J., College of Business at Loyola University New Orleans seeks an assistant or associate professor of international business commencing the 2006-07 academic year. This is a tenure track position. Responsibilities include teaching International Management at the undergraduate and graduate (MBA) levels. Additional consideration will be given to individuals who can also teach in one of the following areas: cross cultural negotiation, global supply chain management, international logistics, global strategy, or multinational new venture development. The individual hired will be expected to advise students and maintain a high level of professional activity through quality research and service. Minimum qualifications include candidacy (ABD) for the Ph.D. or DBA in international business. The candidate also should have an established record of quality teaching and research. An individual with business experience in the area of international business is preferred. Position is subject to final budget approval.

Please submit a letter of application and resume to: Chair of Search Committee, Position EC1, Loyola University New Orleans, Box 15, New Orleans, LA 70118. Applications will be considered until the position is filled; however, applicants are encouraged to submit applications by September 15, 2005 for full consideration. Loyola University is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Employer.