

Lecturer (Assistant Professor) in International Business

As part of long-standing commitment to enhance research and teaching in the areas of international business, we are seeking applications for a Lectureship. Candidates with a range of specialisms and disciplinary backgrounds may be considered. These include areas such as comparative management, international accounting, corporate finance, strategy and decision making, international entrepreneurship, international political economy, and the role of knowledge and technology in the strategy process. However, some preference may be given to an interest in comparative research in Europe, North America or East Asia and in the areas relevant to business strategy or governance in multinational companies.

The Department of Management at King's College London offers an outstanding and supportive research-oriented environment with favourable working conditions (on average about 120 hours teaching per year). The ability to teach in a specialist field on our BSc in Business Management and MSc in International Management degrees will be expected. Emphasis will be placed on the candidate's research excellence. Applicants will be expected to have, or to be near completion of, a Ph.D.

For further information about the Department of Management, its research and teaching programmes, please see <http://www.kcl.ac.uk/schools/sspp/mgmt>

The Lectureship will be on either Lecturer A scale £25,334 - £29,055 per annum plus £2,323 London Allowance per annum or Lecturer B scale £29,991 - £38,449 per annum plus £2,323 London Allowance per annum.

Informal enquiries concerning the post may be directed to Professor Christian Heath (christian.heath@kcl.ac.uk).

Applicant forms and further particulars may be obtained from Human Resource Services, King's College London, Strand, London WC2R 2LS, email strand-recruitment@kcl.ac.uk or fax: (020) 7848 1352.
