

ASSISTANT/ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR
Butler University

We are searching for colleagues who hear a slightly different drummer. They should hold the Ph.D., have active research programs, enjoy working closely with students, and be fine teachers. Beyond that, they should share our conviction that research can be practical, that it can flow across disciplinary lines, and that it should be accomplished without sacrificing student interests in the process. The applicant should enjoy taking a chance in trying something new on a regular basis.

We are looking for a colleague to begin in August 2008 at the assistant or associate professor level. This is a full-time, tenure-eligible position. Teaching and research interests can be in a variety of disciplines, but there must be an international component. We particularly need faculty to teach courses on the international business environment. Successful candidates will be committed to student learning and excited about teaching in an integrated, experiential curriculum. In addition to teaching, scholarly research, and university service, involvement in professional activities and partnering with the business community is highly encouraged. We are particularly interested in candidates who will enhance our efforts to address ethnic and cultural diversity issues. Salary is competitive and commensurate with rank.

Fully accredited by AACSB, the College of Business Administration enrolls 625 full-time undergraduates, over 200 part-time MBA students, and recently launched a Master of Professional Accounting program. In recent years the CBA has made significant strides in making its programs more relevant, integrated, and experiential. As a result, the college received a $22 million grant from the Lilly Endowment in 2005 to fund continued transformation of its business curriculum. This grant provides opportunities for program development, faculty development, research support, and interaction with the business community. We seek a colleague who will take maximum advantage of this opportunity by developing his/her skills in experiential education, integrating across the functional areas of business, and engaging with businesses to improve students' learning experience. Butler is a selective, comprehensive, private university of approximately 3,800 students set on a wooded 300 acre campus in a residential area just north of the center of Indianapolis. Butler University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to enhancing the diversity of the student body and the faculty and staff; therefore, women and minorities are strongly encouraged to apply.

Candidates should send a current vita, along with a letter of intent to:
