University of Melbourne, Australia
Associate Professor, Senior Lecturer or Lecturer in International Management/International Business

The Department of Management and Marketing at the University of Melbourne (http://www.managementmarketing.unimelb.edu.au/), Australia, seeks to appoint up to two academics in the area of International Management or International Business at the Associate Professor, Senior Lecturer or Lecturer levels.

Preferred areas of expertise: International Management/Business, preferably, in the area of HQ subsidiary relationships, Cross-cultural management and/or Asia in the Global Economy.

Position duties: The appointees will develop, teach and administer undergraduate and graduate subjects related to International Management/Business. Particular responsibilities will include supervision of Honours, Masters and Doctoral students as required, and participation in the administration of the Department. The typical teaching load is 3 courses per year. Courses typically run for 12 weeks and entail 2-3-hours of classes per week. They will also engage in research in their disciplinary area and publish in leading international journals, as well as other scholarly outlets.

Starting date: Position available from either January 2009 or June 2009.

Salary: An attractive remuneration package commensurate with qualifications and experience will be offered to the successful candidate.

Further information: The IM/IB group at Melbourne is vibrant and research active. It includes Prof. Anne-Wil Harzing, Prof. David Merrett, Prof. Raymond Zammuto, Prof. Howard Dick, Dr. Tom Osegowitsch, Dr. André Sammartino and Dr. Helen Hu. The Department has around 40 academic staff and 70 Research Higher Degree students. In 2008 the Department had over 6000 enrolments in more than 80 subjects. Established in 1853, shortly after the founding of Melbourne, the University is located just a few minutes from the centre of this global city. The University has almost 35,000 students, who are supported by nearly 6,000 staff members. The University’s outstanding performance in international rankings puts it at the forefront of higher education in the Asia-Pacific region and the world. The University is consistently ranked by the THES among the world’s top 25 universities. For more information about living and working in Melbourne, see: http://www.harzing.com/living.htm

Enquiries Only To:
Professor David Merrett, tel. +613 8344 5337, email: dtm@unimelb.edu.au or
Professor Anne-Wil Harzing, tel. +613 8344 3724, email: harzing@unimelb.edu.au
For further position information (including more detailed selection criteria) and to apply online go to http://www.jobs.unimelb.edu.au/jobDetails.asp?sJobIDs=444879

At AIB Milan: Drs Osegowitsch, Sammartino and Hu will be available to discuss the positions, and answer any further questions about life at Melbourne.

Applications: to be received by 18 July 2008 quoting position no. 0019494