Associate Professor in International Business or International Management

Closing Date: 30 April 2014
Reference Number: LUBS S0270
Faculty / Service: Leeds University Business School
Grade: University Grade 9 (£46,400 - £53,765 p.a.)

Job Summary

Leeds University Business School has built upon its rating of international excellence in the Research Assessment Exercises of 2001 and 2008, being ranked within the top 10 for research in the UK. LUBS is a full-service, research-intensive business school internationally recognised as world-class; differentiated by excellent links to other academic disciplines at Leeds, its global focus, and leading-edge practice-based education. Our goal is to remain one of the leading nodes in International Business scholarship globally and to expand the quantity, quality and reach of our work. As such, we maximize the research time available to research-active faculty and provide strong support and resources. Compensation is competitive with peer institutions, and we provide support for conferences and other research related expenses.

The International Business Division at Leeds University Business School (CIBUL) has global recognition for the quality of its research and teaching. This highly successful division is in the process of expanding. Independent assessments have ranked the International Business Division as the 1st International Business centre in the world and 2nd in the world for leadership in international business research. Within the University of Leeds, the Division has been designated as a Gold Peak of Excellence for the outstanding international calibre of its research.

The International Business Division includes a number of leading centres and initiatives. CIBUL (http://lubswww.leeds.ac.uk/cibul/home/) is one of the world’s leading centres in International Business research, while our recently established Confucius Institute is one of only three in Europe focused on business teaching and scholarship (http://lubswww.leeds.ac.uk/cibul/confucius-institute/).

You will be required to contribute to the research profile of the Centre for International Business University of Leeds (CIBUL) - a world leading research centre in International Business

You will have the ability to teach effectively at all levels, provide effective research student supervision, make a contribution to research programmes and contribute to administration of the School and its taught programmes. A PhD in Business, Management, Economics or a closely related discipline is also essential.
