Description: Loyola University Maryland’s Sellinger School of Business and Management invites applicants for a Visiting Assistant Professor in the Management/International Business department for the 2014-15 academic year. Candidates must possess a doctorate (or be ABD) in international business (or a related field) from an AACSB accredited institution. The position will have primary teaching responsibilities in international management and international business as well as elective courses in an area of the candidate’s special strength.

Applicants must show evidence of, or potential for, excellence in teaching and a commitment to service for the department, school and discipline. The teaching load is expected to be 4 courses per semester. A willingness and ability to teach undergraduate and MBA level courses at any of Loyola’s three campuses is required.

The Joseph A. Sellinger, S.J., School of Business and Management at Loyola University Maryland is AACSB-accredited in business and accounting and offers undergraduate, graduate and Executive MBA programs. The university is ranked fifth among comprehensive universities in the Northern region by US News & World Report. Baltimore is rich in history and ethnic diversity and offers convenient access to Philadelphia and Washington D.C. The university welcomes applicants from all backgrounds who can contribute to its educational mission. Loyola is an Equal Employment Opportunity Employer, seeking applications from underrepresented groups.

Additional information is available at www.loyola.edu. To apply, please go to https://careers.loyola.edu and submit your credentials. Apply Here: http://www.Click2apply.net/54xgnj8