

Welcome to the New JIBS!

LETTER TO THE AIB MEMBERSHIP
FROM JIBS EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ELECT LORRAINE EDEN
July 1, 2007

Dear AIB Members:

I was delighted to meet and talk with many AIB members at the annual Academy of International Business meetings in Indianapolis earlier this week. It is a great honor to have been selected by the AIB Executive Board to be Editor-in-Chief Elect of the Journal of International Business Studies.

1. THE NEW JIBS EDITORIAL TEAM

Starting today – July 1, 2007 – all incoming manuscripts to JIBS will go to the incoming Editorial Team, which consists of myself, Srilata Zaheer (University of Minnesota) as Reviewing Editor, and nine Area Editors: Daniel Bello (Georgia State University), Sea-Jin Chang (Korea University), Witold Henisz (University of Pennsylvania), Lee Radebaugh (Brigham Young University), Lemma Senbet (University of Maryland), Anand Swaminathan (Emory University), Rosalie Tung (Simon Fraser University), Alain Verbeke (University of Calgary) and Arjen van Witteloostuijn (University of Antwerp). Anne Hoekman, the incoming JIBS Managing Editor, will run the new JIBS Office located at AIB Headquarters at Michigan State University.

In addition, a 30-member Consulting Editors Board and a 150-member Editorial Review Board have been formed to replace the current boards. These two new boards will be in place for July 2007 through December 2008. Some descriptive statistics and information on these boards can be found in the PDF version of this letter, which will be posted on the AIB website at <http://aib.msu.edu>. In addition, if you would like to see my PowerPoint presentation to the incoming boards, which I gave and we discussed at the AIB Indy meetings, the slides will also be available in PDF form on the AIB website.

2. MANUSCRIPT CENTRAL IS OPEN FOR BUSINESS

Starting today – July 1 – all new manuscripts must be submitted through the new JIBS Manuscript Central system at <http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/jibs>. This site is now open for individuals to set up their accounts and log in.

Please note that members of the incoming JIBS Consulting Editors Board and Editorial Review Boards already have JIBS Manuscript Central accounts. CEB and ERB members should use the email link sent to them by Managing Editor Anne Hoekman on June 28, 2007.

We would like AIB members who are interested in being ad hoc reviewers for the Journal to please go to the Manuscript Central website now and set up an account. We need ad hoc reviewers and hope that you will be willing to review for JIBS. PhD students are welcome to sign up as ad hoc reviewers as long as they have successfully passed their preliminary examinations and are currently working on their dissertations.

3. SUBMITTING A MANUSCRIPT TO JIBS

Palgrave will “flip the switch” on Monday morning, 9:00 am London (UK) time, turning on the new Palgrave JIBS website. We then “go live” for submission of new manuscripts. We have streamlined the editorial process and expect that this will significantly improve the time from submission to publication. A key factor throughout the process is the double-blind review whereby authors do not know the reviewers of their manuscript, and vice versa. The new process is as follows:

- Authors log onto the JIBS Manuscript Central website. They have the option to update their personal information at that time. Both full-length manuscripts and shorter research notes may be submitted, although we have a clear preference for full-length articles.
- Authors are asked to read several new JIBS policy documents: Statement of Editorial Policy, Information for Contributors, Style Guide and a Code of Ethics. Authors can determine whether their manuscript topic is appropriate for JIBS by reading the new Statement of Editorial Policy and the Information for Contributors. Guidelines as to length, style, and so on are provided in a new JIBS Style Guide, which follows (with a few changes) the style guide of Academy of Management journals. A Code of Ethics for authors, Editors and reviewers has been developed to safeguard the integrity of the double-blind reviewing process. Please note that some of these policy guidelines are still in draft form; final versions should be uploaded over the next two weeks and may differ slightly from the versions currently posted. If you have any questions or comments, please direct them to either Managing Editor Anne Hoekman at managing-editor@jibs.net or to Editor-in-Chief Elect Lorraine Eden at editor-in-chief@jibs.net.
- Authors are asked to nominate two Editors for their paper, using the short key-word statements available on-line beside the name of each Editor to aid their selection. They can select from either the Area Editors or from the Consulting Editors Board.
- Authors are also asked to nominate two to four potential reviewers selected from the Consulting Editors Board (CEB) and the Editorial Review Board (ERB). Short key-word research interest statements are available on-line for each CEB and ERB member to facilitate mapping papers to possible reviewers. Ad hoc reviewers can also be nominated, but authors are encouraged to select ERB and CEB members.
- Once the manuscript is submitted, it first goes to the Managing Editor who logs it into the system. The Managing Editor will reject manuscripts if they are excessively long, not in English, or clearly inappropriate for the Journal.
- The manuscript then passes to the Reviewing Editor, who assesses it for minimum fit and quality. If the manuscript does not pass minimum fit and quality guidelines the Reviewing Editor will desk reject the manuscript. Up to 72 hours (three days) is allotted for this first review; manuscripts in the system after 72 hours are moved automatically to the next step.

- Manuscripts go next to Editor-in-Chief (EIC) who also assesses on minimal fit and quality grounds and can desk reject. If the manuscript is acceptable, the EIC then chooses and assigns an Editor to handle the file. This individual will be either one of the Area Editors or possibly a member of the Consulting Editors Board. (CEB members will guest edit up to three manuscripts per year.) We will try to accommodate the requests of authors for particular Editors, but in cases where an Area Editor is overloaded with manuscripts, the EIC will assign another Editor to the file. Up to 96 hours (four days) are allotted for this step; manuscripts in the system after 96 hours are moved automatically to the Area Editor nominated by the author.
- The Editor then reads the manuscript and decides whether to send it out for review or desk reject. If the manuscript goes out for review, the Editor assigns five reviewers to the manuscript, three of whom are immediately contacted by email and asked to review the manuscript. The other two are back-up reviewers. The invited reviewers may or may not have been nominated by the author; typically one reviewer would have been nominated by the author.
- Reviewers are then invited to review the manuscript, based on an email with the title and abstract for the paper. If they agree to review, they are asked to read the new JIBS policy documents including Guidelines for Reviewers and the Code of Ethics. A new Reviewer Form is used to score manuscripts and submit reviews. Reviewers are asked not to submit corrections for spelling and grammar mistakes, but rather to provide a developmental review of the paper's content and quality.
- Reviewers are given up to one month to complete reviews. A reminder email is sent automatically the week before the review is due, and email reminders are sent each week the review is late.
- If at the end of the month, there are two completed reviews in and a third review is late, the Editor can either make a decision on the basis of the two submitted reviews, or decide to wait for the third review. Editors are expected to write decision letters within a week to 10 days.
- The Editor's decision letter and the reviews are then emailed to the author. In the case of a revise-and-resubmit, authors are given up to four months (with extensions if needed) to revise and resubmit their manuscript. Conditional acceptances are given one month for revisions.
- The intent of the new process is to move manuscripts through the system from submission to acceptance for publication if at all possible within 12-16 months. The beauty of Manuscript Central is that it tracks all stages of the editorial process from start to finish. It also tracks everything involved in the process (e.g., all emails, all copies of the manuscripts, any comments noted on the file, all reviews, and every letter to the Editor). Every step and everyone who "touches" the file (author, Editor, and reviewer) are recorded along with date and time. Unlike the current Outdare system, which only follows the first round of submissions, Manuscript Central tracks all rounds through to the final decision. Authors can check the status of their manuscript from anywhere they can reach the Internet.
- Manuscript Central also provides a wealth of statistical information that can, for example, rate reviewers on their timeliness and quality of their reviews, and rate Editors on their efficiency and effectiveness. We will use these statistics to develop our own internal performance metrics and for external performance reports to the AIB Executive Board. We also intend to use the metrics to help select the members of the second set of editorial boards, from January 2009 through December 2010, and to start recognizing "star reviewers" with "best reviewer of the year" awards at next year's Academy of International Business meetings in Milan, Italy. These new metrics should help us increase the overall efficiency and effectiveness of our editorial process.

4. AUTHORS WITH MANUSCRIPTS ALREADY SUBMITTED TO JIBS

Manuscripts that have already been submitted to JIBS will continue to be handled by the current JIBS Department Editors and the Duke University JIBS Office under Managing Editor Danielle Trojan through December 2007. Please direct any questions about current JIBS manuscripts on the Outdare system to JIBS Managing Editor Danielle Trojan at dtrojan@duke.edu.

The formal transfer of authority from the outgoing Editorial Team to the incoming team will take place on January 1, 2008. Manuscripts that are expected to complete the peer review process before the end of February 2008 will remain with the current JIBS Departmental Editors through February 2008. All remaining manuscripts will be moved to one of the new JIBS Editors and onto Manuscript Central on or before January 2008. Any remaining manuscripts still in the Outdare system at the end of February 2008 will be moved to the new team and transferred to Manuscript Central. The JIBS Duke Office will officially close in March 2008.

In cases where the current JIBS Departmental Editor is continuing on as one of the incoming Editorial Team, we plan to move as many of that Editor's files as administratively feasible over the summer months from Outdare to Manuscript Central. This transfer is costly in administrative time for the new JIBS Office at Michigan State, of course, but it will help speed manuscripts through the system to final decision for authors and reviewers, and reduce the administrative workload of Editors caught juggling between Outdare and Manuscript Central.

5. UPCOMING JIBS-RELATED EVENTS

First, you may not have heard that JIBS is growing. We will move from seven to eight issues in 2008, and grow again to 10 issues each in 2009 and 2010. This expansion in the size of the journal should make for the more rapid publication of accepted manuscripts.

JIBS* Incoming Editors & Boards Meeting, August 2007: Thanks to the assistance of Executive of the International Management Division, we have secured a room for an editorial board meeting on Sunday, August 5, 2007, in the Marriott Hotel, room 310, during the Academy of Management meetings in Philadelphia. This meeting is for the incoming JIBS Editors, Consulting Editors Board and Editorial Review Board only. The exact time of the meeting will be announced later in July (we have the room reserved for the afternoon), but I did want to share this information now.

AIB/JIBS* Frontiers Conference, November 2007: I also want to draw the attention of AIB members to an upcoming AIB/JIBS Frontiers Conference at Florida International University in late November 2007 on "Conflict, Security and Political Risk: Int'l Business in a Challenging Environment". The conference organizer is Mary Ann von Glinow. See the Call for Papers at: <http://aib.msu.edu/events/frontiers/2007/>. The theme for this year's conference – focused on conflict, security and international business – should be of interest not only to international business scholars, but also to scholars in related disciplines such as international relations, international political economy and national security.

JIBS* Special Issue, "Asia and Global Business": JIBS is publishing a special issue on "Asia and Global Business in the 21st Century: Institutions, Cultures, and Strategic Transformations", guest edited by Mike Peng (University of Texas at Dallas) and Rabi Bhagat (University of Memphis). The Call for Papers is posted at: http://www.palgrave-journals.com/jibs/asia_and_global_business_cfp1.html. Submissions are due no later than December 1, 2007.

JIBS Special Issue on Innovations in International Business Theory: In 2008, AIB will celebrate its 50th anniversary, and in 2009, JIBS will celebrate its 40th anniversary. To celebrate these two milestones, the incoming JIBS Editorial Team has decided to publish a special issue of JIBS on innovations in international business theory. Manuscripts can be empirical, but will be evaluated primarily on their innovativeness in theory development. A formal Call for Papers for the Innovations Anniversary Issue will be posted on the JIBS website shortly. Manuscripts can be submitted at any time between early July and March 2008; the Anniversary Issue will likely be published around the AIB 2009 meetings in San Diego.

6. THE NEW JIBS GOALS

My Editors and I will continue the momentum of the current JIBS Editorial Team in making the Journal the first choice for insightful and influential research on international business. Our general strategy is to strengthen the Journal by (1) tightening and improving the manuscript process; (2) encouraging top-flight submissions from credible, mainstream scholars in international business; and (3) continuing the work begun by Editor-in-Chief Arie Lewin in broadening the readership and diversity of the Journal.

Journal impact factors are widely used as measures of journal quality, with a score of 2.0 and higher being recognized as an “A” journal. JIBS jumped in the Social Sciences Citation Index rankings to 8th place among all Management journals and 8th place among all Business journals in terms of the 2006 Journal Impact Factor. Among Management journals, MIS Quarterly was highest at 4.731; AMR 4.515; AMJ 3.353; Organization Science 2.815; SMJ 2.632; ASQ 2.455; and then JIBS at 2.254. Among Business journals, Journal of Marketing was highest at 4.831; AMR 4.515; Marketing Science 3.977; AMJ 3.353; SMJ 2.632; ASQ 2.455; J Marketing Research 2.389; and then JIBS at 2.254.

Our goal is to raise the JIBS journal impact score to parity with the scores of Organization Science and Strategic Management Journal. JIBS should be not only the premier journal of international business studies, but also peer ranked among the world’s premier journals of business. Now that JIBS has joined the Top 10 Business & Management Journals, to move up JIBS must go head-to-head with these “big league” journals. This means that JIBS must attract and publish only the highest quality manuscripts. The criterion for publication must be: insightful and influential articles on international business that are widely read and cited by business and management scholars. This will be the base-line criterion for paper acceptance, to be kept in mind by all JIBS Editors, Consulting Editors, Editorial Board members, Reviewers and Authors.

7. CONCLUSION

While hardware and software matter, we know that the human input is even more important. We need top scholars in international business to see JIBS as their first choice for journal submission if we are to move into the first tier of business journals. That means we all need to pull together, both during the transition between Editorial Teams and afterwards.

On behalf of the incoming Editors and myself, I want to thank Editor-in-Chief Arie Lewin, Dani Trojan and Joy Kearney in the JIBS Offices, and all the members of the current JIBS Editorial Team – in particular the Departmental Editors – for their assistance and advice during this process. Editing a major journal is a huge and daunting undertaking. Without their dedication and support, it would be an impossible task – thank you for all you do for JIBS!

We look forward to working with you – the doors are open for The New JIBS!
